IF I SHOULD DIE TO-NIGHT. . .

KENTUCKY RIVER TOWING COMPANY.

If I should die to-night,
My friends would look upon my quiet face

Before they laid it in its resting place,
And seems that death had left it almost fair;

And, laying snow-white flowers
against my hair,
Would smooth it down with tearful tenderness,

And fold my hands with lingering caresses—

Poor hands, so empty and so cold to-night!

If I should die to-night,
My friends would call to mind with loving thought,

Some kindly deed the icy hands had wrought,

Some gentle word the frozen lips had said,

Errands on which the willing feet had sped;

The memory of my selfishness and pride,

My hasty words, would all be put aside,

And so I should be loved and mourned to-night.

If I should die to-night,
Even hearts estranged would turn once more to me,

Recalling other days remorsefully:

The eyes that chil me with averted glance.

Would look upon me as of yore, perchance,

And soften in the old familiar way,
For who could war with dumb, unconscious clay?

So I might rest, forgiven of all to-night.

Oh, friends! I pray to-night,
Keep not your kisses for my dead, cold braw;

The way is lonely, let me feel them now;

Think gently of me; I am travel-worn;

My faltering feet are pierced with many a thorn,
Forgive, oh, hearts estranged, forgive, I plead!

When dreamless rest is mine I shall not need

The tenderness for which I long to-night.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

The Best Ever Held by That Body
In State.

The Y. M. C. A. Convention, which had been in session since Friday afternoon, adjourned at 10 o'clock on Sunday night.

It was the largest and best Convention ever held by that organization in the State. Upwards of 150 delegates composed the body.

Busy sessions were held Friday afternoon, Saturday morning, afternoon and evening. The pulpits of the different churches were occupied by members of the Association at 11 o'clock on Sunday morning. A meeting was held at the Open House at 3 o'clock p.m., for men only, addressed by Mr. Dodge. A meeting for boys at the same hour, at the Christian Church, addressed by Mr. Magill. A meeting for ladies, only at the same hour, at the First Baptist Church, addressed by Mr. G. N. Bierce. The final meetings were held, at the First Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p.m., which closed up the business proper, and the general round up, at the same church at 8:30 o'clock.

All the addresses were able, attractive and well calculated to do good.

We wish, in especial manner, to commend the earnest, searching and thrilling address of Mr. Dodge, at the Open House, on Sunday afternoon.

We wish that every man and boy in this whole community could have heard it. It was filled with facts, illustrations and warnings that every young man, especially, ought to know and give good heed to.

A marked feature of the Convention was the singing of the Male Quartette from the Highland Baptist Church, of Louisville.

The songs sung were tender, rich in melody and the truth of the gospel Verily, it was the "gospel in song."

The delegates expressed themselves as delighted with the cordial hospitality with which they were entertained, and enthusiastic at the future outlook of the organization.

Indeed it was a marvel, considering how many families were suffering from the prevailing influenza, that they were able to do the necessary work at all.

ACCIDENT ON THE L. & N. CUT.

OFF.

Late Friday afternoon a passenger train, which was backing to Christiansburg, on the cut-off, when the tender jumped the track, the engine and passenger car following. The engine and tender were overturned, the plain twine string attached to a June bug's leg, and the Old Masters never drank deeper, diviner draughts from the fountain of Melody, than he forces as his fist.

The small boy is passionately fond of music, not classical, but nature's melodies, a June-bug solo charms him as nothing else can do, give him a smile, and then again there is the bump of combativeness, barely visible or perceptible to the touch, while in the company of parent or teacher, and yet on the playground, it is as large as his fist.

All trains were delayed over an hour from that reluctant and gaudy winged hug. The birds in the trees and nut. He is out for fun, and if they can serve his purpose, he uses them, otherwise, like the Levite, he passes by on the other side.

It is an open question whether he is a beast of burden or bird or prey, but it is a settled fact that he is not always "a thing of beauty, nor is he a joy forever," as many fond parents can testify, but we are prepared to assert without fear of contradiction, that Solomon in all his glory and possessions, never had a better time. When he arises in the morning and puts on his boots, he says, go to now, I will have a good time this day, and he generally does. No cankering care stalks, like "Giant Despair," between him and the Palace Beautiful. For him the sun always shines, either in the sky or in his heart. Unlike his brothers of a larger growth, he does not borrow trouble, and worry over petty cares, for he has learned from a marvelous intuition, to take no thought for the morrow, believing, as he does with all of his heart and mind, that the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself; to him, sufficient unto the day is the evil or good thereof.

His observation and philosophy are akin to those of the old negro, who said that he had noticed all of his life that whenever he got through March, he got through the remainder of the year.

He does not lie awake at night worrying over the financial system of the country, nor does he congregate in large numbers on street corners, making exhibition of his dense ignorance on the subject by arguing pro and con; he is, however, in reality, a pronounced monometallic—for he prefers the nickel to either gold or silver, and uses it almost exclusively as a medium of exchange, and if he could, would use it at the ratio of 10 to 15 times as often as he does.

As a rule, the small boy is not unusually neat, at any rate he is not fastidious; and if it be true that "cleanliness is next to Godliness," then he is not always next, for, like a true Kentuckian, he is fond of his soil and clings to it with patriotic pride. Like Tom Moore's sun flower he "turns to his God when he sets, the same face he turned when he arose," without the addition of a drop of water, and in the absence of maternal vigilance, he turns into bed at night with the same feet he turned out when he arose, with the addition of several coats of dirt.

If we consider him in the light of the science of phonology, the small boy is a wonder; he has on his head humps for which that science can not account, and what is more remarkable still, some of these humps are changeable; for instance, when under parental supervision, his hump of reverence and respect is round and fully developed, at other times it is scarcely discernible to the naked eye, and then again there is the bump of combativeness, barely visible or perceptible to the touch, while in the company of parent or teacher, and yet on the playground, it is as large as his fist.

The small boy is passionately fond of music, not classical, but nature's melodies, a June-bug solo charms him as nothing else can do, give him a smile, and then again there is the bump of combativeness, barely visible or perceptible to the touch, while in the company of parent or teacher, and yet on the playground, it is as large as his fist.

All trains were delayed over an hour from that reluctant and gaudy winged hug. The birds in the trees and the bees in the clover constitute his orchestra, but there are times when the harmony of a hand organ (with a monkey accompaniment) soothes his restless soul as nothing else can do.

Oh glorious days of happy boyhood, filled with pleasure pure and multitudinous, out with top and ball and marbles the livelong day, and home at night with mother. Can we ever forget her good-night kiss? Though all other memories that cluster about the halcyon days of boyhood should fade—the perfume of the flowers; the music of the birds; the days of fun and frolic; of sunshine and happiness; of playmate and sweetheart; of love and contentment; yet, through the maze and the mist of the fading years, the tender memory of that good-night kiss will ever come to our weary brains and hearts, like "the benediction that follows after prayer." When life's pilgrimage is ended, and life's duties are done, and we come at last lifting up our hearts to where they are understood, I can wish no greater boon for any of us than that we may smile back into God's face, with the same pure glad lips that mother used to kiss.

"Ah though we miss all else but this,
It is enough."

The small boy is the very embodiment of Charity, for like Charity, he is not puffed up (except immediately after his meals); he vaunts not himself (unless he is larger than the other boy); he doth not behave himself unseemly (while asleep), and like Charity, he covers a multitude of sins, and yet with all of his faults, we love him still.

Strange as it may seem, when the Master was on earth and was asked by his disciples for a type of the citizenship of the New Jerusalem, he did not point to one of his disciples; He did not point to Peter, of whom He had said, thou art Peter and upon this rock I build my church, but He laid His hands on the head of a little child (in all probability a small boy) and said, of such is the Kingdom of Heaven. Such as these are around us today, about the hearthstone, entwined in our affections, and enthroned in our hearts; dreaming of the future, yearning to be men; walking in our "foot steps" (oh fearful thought). Are we leading them aright?

Is the pathway upward? Here is a raw material out of which the future citizenship of the Nation is to be constructed. What are we doing for his protection? Are we too busy with our plans and schemes and ambitions to give thought to his welfare? Are we standing with idle hands and folded arms, while the gilded dens of vice are luring him to ruin? Shall the same son devour forever, and we raise no voice of protest?

This is the raw material out of which the homes of the Commonwealth are (in part) to be constructed. Shall they be Christian homes? Did you ever stop to consider the meaning, to weigh the influence of a Christian home, a home wherein there is erected an altar to the living God; a home wherein Christian parents rear, in the fear and admonition of the Lord, Christian children, who go out into the world to build other Christian homes; here is the first link in an endless chain, here is the beginning of an influence that shall widen and widen until it touches the very shores of time.

There are other homes, constructed out of this "raw material"—homes of sin and sorrow, of degradation and despair. A few squares away, there is a home largely recruited from this raw material, enclosed by stone walls and where the inmates peer through iron bars. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

So I plead for the boys to-night—for a greater interest in their welfare—for a broader sympathy with them in their struggles and temptations—for greater generosity in subscribing to the institutions that are working for their uplift. Let us as men (for what are we but boys of a larger growth), whether old men, middle aged men or young men stand by, and extend to the boys a helping hand.

"Then here's to our boyhood, its gold and its gray,
The stars of its winter, the dews of its May,
When we have done with our life's lasting toys,
Dear Father take care of thy children, the boys."

DEATH OF MISS HARRIETT BROWN TODD.

On Tuesday morning last Miss Harriett Brown Todd, youngest daughter of the late Mr. John M. and Mrs. Halle E. Todd, passed away, in Louisville, of consumption.

Miss Todd was born in this city, but had spent the greater part of her life in Louisville.

Naturally of frail and delicate build, yet she was the embodiment of energy and life. Bright and cheery in disposition, notwithstanding the clouds of sorrow and adversity that had hovered so long over life's pathway, she was the marvel of all who knew her. For many years she was a teacher in the Kentucky Street School, in the city of Louisville, and won the hearts of all her pupils by firm, but gentle, indulgent and kindly rule in her class room.

She was a devout Christian, and had been from childhood a member of the Central Presbyterian Church. Her trust and confidence in her Savior and Redeemer were unshaking, as the chill waters flowed to her feet.

Some three years ago she was compelled, by failing health, to resign her position in the city school.

In all the relations of life she was an exemplification of the religion she loved, whether as daughter, sister, relative or friend.

For months she knew that the grim monster was slowly but surely approaching, and welcomed his coming as a friend to bring succor from sorrow and suffering, yet ever bright and cheery.

She is the last of a large family of brothers and sisters, but leaves a nephew, Mr. John T. Bradley, of Jeffco, Tenn., and a wide circle of warmly attached relatives in the Louisville and this city, to whom her going will bring the keenest sorrow.

The remains were brought here on Wednesday morning and laid to rest by the side of her mother, father, sisters and brothers in our cemetery.

SINGULAR OCCURRENCE.

On July 4, 1867, Mr. Ben Tracey, wife and daughter, of this city, spent the day in Lexington. While out on East Main street, the little girl lost ring, which she was wearing.

One day last week Mr. Tracey was again in Lexington and passed along the same place, when he happened to look down on the pavement, when there was the ring, just as his daughter had dropped it. It had lodged in a seam in the pavement.

It is needless to say that the little one was greatly rejoiced at the finding of the ring.

We doubt if such a thing could ever occur again. Considering the crowds that pass that way every day, the wonder is no one else saw the ring.

(For the Roundabout.) A COUNTRY CHURCH.

In a pleasant little village
Tho' on no map doth it appear,
And so for sundry reasons,
Shall it be nameless here,
Is a little white church building.
Where many feet have trod,
The pathway to the doorway
Of this little church of God.

'Tis a peaceful looking structure
Within the churchyard's green
And the Sabbath sun shines brightly
Where all seems so serene.
But when the doors are opened
And in the people throng,
It doesn't take a moment
To guess there's something wrong.

For the amen corner's empty,
The deacons all look glum,
And many folks are absent.
Who generally always come.

And we wonder what's the matter
For we're not right in the swim,
And the preacher all unconscious
Announces the opening hymn.

And we scarce can keep from smiling
At the humor of the thing,
For half the choir is absent
And the other half won't sing.
But some one to the rescue
Flutters in and fills the breach.
And after that a prayer is said
Then Brother — begins to preach.

After the Lord's Supper
Comes another faltering tune,
But we notice half the members
With the others won't come,
But as they sing the closing hymn
We miss the contribution plate,
So when the service closes
We pass out by the gate.

And ask one of the knowing ones
What might the trouble be,
It's time to call a preacher,
But no two will agree."

But who or what the wranglers want,

And why they lose their tempers so,

And who or what would suit them

We don't believe they really know.

And so we pass on thinking
As we leave the house of God,

The only nonconformists

Are those beneath the sod,

And we who are not "in it"

Look on and see the fun,

Wouldn't the Dear Rev. be a dandy?

Who could please them every one?

They're not as in politics

Support the nomine

For there is no majority

Where no two will agree.

COUNTRY FIRE.

The residence of Mr. Luke Stafford, known as the Gen. Peter Dudley place, lying three miles from the city, on the Versailles pike, was destroyed by fire Sunday afternoon last.

The house was a large one, and Mr. Stafford was using several of the rear rooms for stripping his tobacco, which, together with nearly everything in the house was lost.

In the long ago this house was famous as the scene of old time Kentucky hospitality. Gen. Dudley was a wealthy man and resided in the house during the winter (in the house on St. Clair street demolished to make way for Mr. C. Dix, Assistant State Secretary, residing in behalf of the Convention felicitous words.

A male Quartette from the Highland Baptist Church, of Louisville, rendered several delightful pieces of music, which were loudly encored.

Toastmaster Ernst then introduced Mr. W. O. Davis, of Versailles, who had as his theme "Our Raw Material—The Small Boy."

Mr. Davis' address sparkled with wit and fun and was the very best address which it has ever been our pleasure to hear from him.

Wit seems to flow from the end of his tongue as naturally as water to run down hill, and he kept the audience in roars of laughter from start to finish. [See this address in another place—Ed.]

Interpersed with it were some pointed and touching remarks, which were no less apt and impressive.

The Quartette rendered other selections of music, which were inspiring and delightful.

The Toastmaster then introduced Mr. G. N. Bierce, of Dayton, Ohio, who made an address of earnestness and power, upon the subject "Our opportunities and Responsibilities," which went right down to the root of the subject and emphasized the opportunities for good and the accountability of Christian business men for using those opportunities. The address had fine effect as was shown by the undivided "enjoy given its delivery.

Toastmaster Ernst then introduced Mr. S. W. Magill, General Secretary of the Tennessee State Convention, who made a short and stirring talk upon subjects of general utility in the Association work. His remarks were impromptu, as Rev. Dr. F. W. Hinman, of Central University, was to have made the closing address, but was detained and did not arrive until Saturday.

Just prior to the benediction Mr. Ernst called upon the audience to arise while he proposed a toast to the ladies, as follows:

"Here's to the ladies—
We can't always live without them
We can't always live with them—
God bless them."

The benediction was pronounced by Prof. Lewis, and the big and enthusiastic crowd slowly dispersed.

The menu, as furnished by the ladies, was as near perfection as Frankfort ladies know so well how to make it. It was dainty and appetizing, and disappeared rapidly from the long tables, which were beautifully arranged and decorated, lighted with candles and ornamented with fragrant flower.

Altogether it was an occasion long to be remembered with pleasure and profit.

Y. M. C. A. BANQUET.

On Friday night last the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. gave a banquet to the delegates and members of the Y. M. C. A. Convention, in the Sunday-school rooms of the First Presbyterian Church.

Hon. R. P. Ernst, of Covington, presided as Toastmaster, and called upon Judge J. P. Hobson to invoke the Divine blessing.

Owing to the illness of Rev. Chas. R. Hudson, of this city, who was to have delivered the address of welcome, Rev. J. M. Severance was called upon to perform that duty, which he did in his most imitative and felicitous manner, putting every one in a receptive mood for the speeches to which were to follow.

Mr. P. C. Dix, Assistant State Secretary, responded in behalf of the Convention felicitous words.

THE WELD THAT HELD

Science has developed something infinitely better than the old-style wrap or clamp.

"PITTSBURGH PERFECT" FENCES ARE WELDED BY ELECTRICITY.

This is the modern method of construction. Years of life are added through the elimination of serious fence defects.

A WRAP holds moisture, cracks the galvanizing and allows the water to attack the bare wire. A small amount of displaced galvanizing on "PITTSBURGH PERFECT" REINFORCES THE PROTECTION AGAINST RUST AT THE ELECTRICALLY WELDED JOINT; examine the joint.

STAYS CANNOT SLIP. They are always just where they were put. Stay and strand wires become one piece when the union is made. The fence is like a solid sheet of perforated steel.

Every Rod is Guaranteed Perfect.

Don't allow your prejudice in favor of the rapidly-declining and now antiquated methods you have heretofore known, to warp your good judgment.

"PITTSBURGH PERFECT" FENCES REPRESENT PROGRESS, because hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of standard material is daily welded by electricity.

The hoop on the average sugar barrel in the isolated country grocery store is an electrically welded product.

If your wagon was made in a large factory, its tires were welded by electricity.

"PITTSBURGH PERFECT" fences are made by this modern, simple and marvelous process, product.

Can you ask any more definite protection? Your complete satisfaction is absolutely assured.

You will find electrically welded hoops on ice cream freezers and washing machines, on tubs and buckets. Examine them.

That the wires are not injured at the joints.

That the stays are partially adjustable to uneven ground.

That the stays will not separate from the strands.

That the fence is all right in every particular.

Could you ask any more definite protection? Your complete satisfaction is absolutely assured.

WAR INCIDENT.

War is not always given visaged, as an incident in the life of the late Capt. C. W. Merchant proves. As is known Capt. Merchant was born and raised in Lexington, going from that place into the Regular Army.

On one occasion Capt. Merchant became separated from his command and was captured by Gen. John H. Morgan, of the Confederate Army. When he was brought before Gen. Morgan, and it was learned by him that Merchant was a Lexington boy, he once released him unconditionally and gave him money with which to reach his command.

Later Capt. Merchant was within a few yards of Gen. Morgan, in a battle in Tennessee, and could easily have killed the Southern leader, as he was completely in his power. He permitted him to go away and escape.

When questioned by his superior officer as to his conduct, he at once related the incident, and the officer heartily commended him for his chivalrous course.

HOW TO REMAIN YOUNG.

To continue young in health and strength, do as Mrs. N. F. Rowan, McDonough, Ga., did. She says: "Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured me of chronic liver and stomach trouble."

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten out limb or chronic cripples, nor turn bone over bone again. That is impossible. I can now surely kill the pains and purge off a deplorable disease.

In Germany with a chemist in the City of Frankfurt—I found the last ingredient with little difficulty. It is a perfectly safe and perfect, dependable prescription. Without its last ingredient, I successfully treated many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I finally cure all possible cases of this disease with one medicine. Those who grandmamas found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve it pass away under the action of this remedy as easily as does sugar when added to pure water, ad then, when dissolved, these polychromed waters are perfectly clear. This is the true secret of my cure for rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

KENTUCKY-JAMESTOWN NOTES.

Active Work in Progress Here and Elsewhere for the Big World's Fair.

A whirlwind canvas for funds to provide for Kentucky's participation in the Jamestown Exposition is now in progress in Louisville under the auspices of a committee appointed by the Board of Trade. Excellent progress is reported and it is believed that by the end of the week the Falls City will have raised her share of the sum asked by Kentucky Commission of the entire State. Col. J. Stoddard Johnston, president of the State Commission, declared Kentucky has the finest site and will erect the most unique State building on the Exposition grounds. Subscriptions to the State fund are solicited from citizens in every section of Kentucky.

It will be only two months from Tuesday, Feb. 26, before the gates of the Exposition will be thrown open. Actual work in connection with Kentucky's exhibit at the World's Fair has been progressing nicely. Two car loads of timber for use in the construction of the Fort of Boonesboro, Kentucky's building at the Fair, are now on their way to Norfolk. The second car shipped was filled with clapboards which will be used in making the roofs on the cabins in the Fort.

There is said to be every assurance that the old frigate "Constitution," more commonly known as "Old Ironsides" will join in the naval demonstration at the Jamestown Exposition. It will be used a portion of the time as a training ship for the naval cadets from Annapolis. The historic old ship is now being prepared at the Charlestown Navy Yard near Boston.

Wisconsin is one of the latest States to fall into line with legislative appropriation for a State Building and exhibit at the Exposition. The State Legislature has appropriated $25,000 for Wisconsin's participation.

Although the Legislature of Georgia appropriated $35,000 for a State Building and exhibit at the World's Fair, this sum is being largely supplemented by the various cities of the State.

The cases for Kentucky's mineral exhibit have been ordered and are now nearing completion. The mineral display will be made under the direction of Prof. C. J. Norwood, of Lexington, Director of Mineral Exhibits on the State Commission. It is the intention to exhibit samples of every mineral found in Kentucky and an excellent display will be made of the various clays and building stones which abound in this State.

Announcement comes from Norfolk that all of the large Exhibit Palaces are practically completed. The States Exhibit Building and Mines & Metallurgy Building are now ready to receive displays. In each of these buildings Kentucky is to have space.

A progress map just issued by the Exposition Company, prominently displays the site which has been assigned Kentucky for her State Building. The Kentucky Building will set in the edge of a large grove of native pines. The front of the stockade is to be built over the sands of the seashores and the rear portion will encompass some of the trees of the pine forest.

Connecticut enjoys the distinction of receiving the first installment permit in the States Exhibit Building. Maryland was given permit No. 2;

Virginia, permit No. 3, and Louisiana, permit No. 4. The permit for Kentucky's exhibit will be issued as soon as the exhibit is started from this State.

THOMAS NELSON PAGE ON THE NEGRO QUESTION.

In the March McClure's there is a note-worthy article on the Negro Question by Thomas Nelson Page. Under the title of "The Great American Question—The Special Plea of a Southerner," he deals with the subject in a distinguished manner, as the following extracts from his introduction show:

There are some things so well understood by those who know the negroes, as to appear to them almost truisms. For example:

That the white race is superior to the negro race; not accidentally and because of superior training, but inherently and fundamentally.

That in certain things negroes differ widely among themselves; for example, in temper, character, training, manner, temperament. But that in certain respects, all, or nearly all negroes, have the same race characteristics; as Indians, Chinese, Caucasians and other races have them. * * *

That the negroes understand by "social equality," for the most part, only: the right to stand with white women on precisely the same ground as that on which white men stand with them. * * *

That there is a wide difference at present between the point of view of the great body of the Northerners and the entire body of the Southerners as to the negro; in this, that Northerners espouse the cause of the negroes as a race, but dislike negroes individually, while Southerners do not dislike negroes individually, but oppose them as a race. And that this difference is due to conditions and not to basic principles. * * *

There is another vital fact not generally known to Southerners: that one of the chief causes, if not the chief cause at present of the feeling at the North in favor of the negro is the violence so often directed against negroes at the South. There is quite as much violence against them in some other parts of the country, in proportion to the colored population, as at the South; but for reasons not necessary to discuss here, this is not taken into account.

The brunt of the center of the country falls on the South, and the South, for every account, but especially for its own sake, ought to put a stop to it with relentless hand, or else make it clear to the rest of the world why it is not done.

STRANGE ADVICE!

Dr. G. G. Green gives his personal attention to his great humanitarian contract.

In our Almanac for many years past we have given unusual advice to those afflicted with coughs, colds, throat or lung troubles or consumption. We have told them to drink German Syrup, and it has always been a special benefit after the use of one 75-cent size bottle of German Syrup, to consult their doctor. We did not ask them or urge them to use a large number of bottles, as is the case in the advertising of many other remedies. Our confidence in German Syrup makes it possible for us to give such advice. We know by the experience of over 35 years that one 75-cent bottle of German Syrup will cure rheumatism or cure the worst coughs, colds, bronchial or lung troubles—and that, even in bad cases of consumption, one large bottle of German Syrup will work wonders. One trial bottle 25¢; a regular size, 75¢. At all druggists.
